Title	- Preservation of the Old Banyan Tree
Introduction	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Recently, there has been much discussion about the preservation of the one hundred-year-old banyan tree inside our school. - Some of us believe that it should be cut down for a construction project in our school, while others maintain that this old tree has long been an icon of our school.
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - In my view, the old banyan tree should be preserved due to the following reasons.
Body	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - The old tree has the historical value—the icon of the school. - Not only does it represent our school, but it also helps establish a strong sense of belonging. - rest and talk under the tree - memorable moments related to the old tree - It is such a great loss not only to our teachers and students, but also to our alumni.
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Some may argue that cutting down the tree can create extra space to build new learning facilities or amenities. - without much educational value
	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - As far as I am concerned, these are not completely true. - Cutting down the tree may not create much space for a building. - has its educational value - Cutting down the old banyan may convey a wrong message to students that everything can be easily sacrificed. - only take minutes to cut down the tree but at least decades to grow it back
Conclusion	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - obvious that the old tree preservation is important in view of its historical significance and educational value
