Windy

Last Sunday, I went to a country park with my friends, Peter and John. When we arrived, there were many people. Some were flying kites. Some were riding bicycles. Some were having a picnic. We could not find a place to settle down, so we continued to walk further.

Finally, we reached an area with a few tables. However, there was no barbecue pit available so we set up one by ourselves. Suddenly, our self-made barbecue pit fell apart and a fire broke out! We were very frightened! The strong wind and the dry weather made the fire burn even worse. We wanted to seek help, but nobody was around. We tried to use some water to stop the fire, but it didn't work and the fire kept on burning. Luckily, some visitors walked by at that moment. They helped us put out the fire. We were very grateful to them. They showed us the way to the country park visitor centre. Then we asked one of the attendants for assistance and he helped us find a proper barbecue pit in the country park.

We followed the advice given by the attendant and had a great time there afterwards. Our big meal included a lot of barbecued food, such as chicken wings, fish balls and sausages. I was having my favourite marshmallows while John was eating his favourite potato chips. We left the country park at around four o'clock. Although an accident had happened earlier, we still enjoyed the day a lot!
