Alvin is reading an article about egg tarts in Hong Kong. Read it carefully and choose the best answers for Questions 23-28.

Egg Tarts in Hong Kong

By Peter Wong

In Hong Kong, egg tarts are a part of the city's food culture. They are made with eggs, butter, flour and sugar. Nowadays, Hong Kong-style egg tarts are very popular in other places in Asia.

Hong Kong-style egg tarts are not like Portuguese egg tarts in Macau. One of the major differences is that Portuguese egg tarts in Macau have a sweet and slightly burnt layer on top while Hong Kong-style egg tarts have a shinier and smoother layer.

To make Hong Kong-style egg tarts, mix butter, sugar, eggs and flour together in a bowl first. Keep pressing the mixture until it forms a pile of dough. Cut the dough into small balls. Press them into tart cases and refrigerate them for 30 minutes. Next, melt the sugar in hot water and beat the eggs in the sugar water. Take the tart shells out of the refrigerator, and pour the egg mixture into them. Bake the egg tarts for around 20 minutes. After that, you can enjoy the golden egg tarts!

So, what is special about Hong Kong-style egg tarts? Hong Kong-style egg tarts are made with butter, instead of lard, which is pig fat. This makes Hong Kong-style egg tarts much healthier. Also, the smell of butter is a perfect match for the taste of eggs. This is why people in Hong Kong love it so much.

The best time to taste Hong Kong-style egg tarts is when they are still fresh from the oven. Many Chinese restaurants in Hong Kong serve very tasty egg tarts. Although there are more and more new snacks available in the city, the taste of egg tarts is still the best.

Alvin is reading an e-mail from his friend Kyle. Read it carefully and choose the best answers for Questions 29-35.

To:	Alvin Leung<alvinleung@happymail.com>
From:	Kyle Keating<kylekeating@joymail.com>
Date:	5 September 20XX 8:15 pm
Subject:	Hello from Ireland

Dear Alvin,

I was glad to receive your e-mail when I got home from my swimming lesson after school.

In the e-mail, you attached a photo of a vehicle going up and down a hill. It runs on tracks. The sign on the vehicle says 'Admiralty'. What's the name of this type of transport? It's amazing that one of them can go uphill and the other one can go downhill at the same time. When I visit Hong Kong again, I'd love to take it!

My new school term started a few days ago. The first lesson begins at 8:30 am after a 30-minute bible reading session. In the bible reading session, we read our own bible and pray quietly. Our teachers walk around to make sure everybody is behaving.

Unlike your school, we all have lunch in the canteen, but not in the classroom. Every student queues up with a tray to take the food. We usually have mashed potatoes with a few choices of meat such as deep-fried fish, chicken slices and meat balls. My friends and I always finish our lunch and tidy up the table quickly. Then, we play football in the playground until the bell rings!

Our school requires us to take part in some sports as extra-curricular activities. I've chosen swimming and football. Some of my friends have picked golf, gymnastics, handball, hockey, etc. Many schools in Ireland make students do the same because the Irish think doing sports is an important part of our lives.

I'd love to hear about your interesting school life in Hong Kong. Please write back.

Yours,
Kyle
