

Read the poem.

There is plenty of food.
They all taste so good.
How can I pick my favourite dish?
Eating them all is my wish!

Walk along the street,
I can always find something sweet.
Along the shop windows I see some fruit tarts,
But I want to try the hot egg tarts.

Inside this crowded place,
'Order more food,' I want to say.
The red bean soup looks creamy.
Those barbecued pork buns are so steamy.

The cafe has lovely drinks,
I choose the milkshake in pink.
Tasty dishes are everywhere,
But my full tummy is as big as a bear.
