What do you think about this year's Book Fair? Share your thoughts.

Oh no! I had to line up for almost an hour before I could get in. Although the wait was long, I was cheered up as the books were sold at big discounts! I bought a storybook by Larry Smith, my favourite writer, at half price and a few exercise books for practising my English at a 20 percent discount. I also got a lot of free gifts such as pens and small notebooks. What a wonderful Book Fair!

The crowd control was poor—many visitors just jumped the line. When I tried to stop them from doing so, they yelled at me! There weren't enough security guards to take care of the crowd. Some people walked so close to the road, which was surely dangerous. The organiser must think more carefully about it.

I tried my best to bring visitors a great Book Fair. It had everything I expected—leisure reading, exercise books, stationery, children's books and even magazines. All were sold at low prices and people liked that. I felt really excited. I promise to pay more attention to crowd control next year.

I missed the Book Fair last year because of my trip to Japan with my parents, so I had no idea which one is better—this year's or last year's? All I can say is—I love this year's Book Fair! Many of my fans bought my new book, Love Camp, and I signed my name on the books for them. How wonderful! It was such an unforgettable Book Fair!

Staying Healthy

by James Martin

[Part I]

(i)

With all sorts of junk food easily available everywhere, staying healthy becomes a challenge for many people. However, if you are keen on staying happy and young, a healthy lifestyle is what you must have. Why not try the following ways out?

(ii)

Doing physical exercises, especially those which involve the movement of the whole body, such as running and swimming, is important to you as it keeps your muscles strong. Strong muscles help with everyday activities like climbing stairs and walking until an old age. Start with something mild like swimming, jogging or yoga. They can make your muscles more flexible. Never forget warm-up and cool-down exercises. They help you avoid injury.

(iii)

Next, you also need to have a balanced diet. Healthy food like fruit, vegetables, eggs, rice and bread should always be on your plate! It is wise to eat less fatty and oily food. For healthy bone growth, you can drink milk or eat cheese, both of them are rich in calcium, a nutrient which is important for the growth of bones.

(iv)

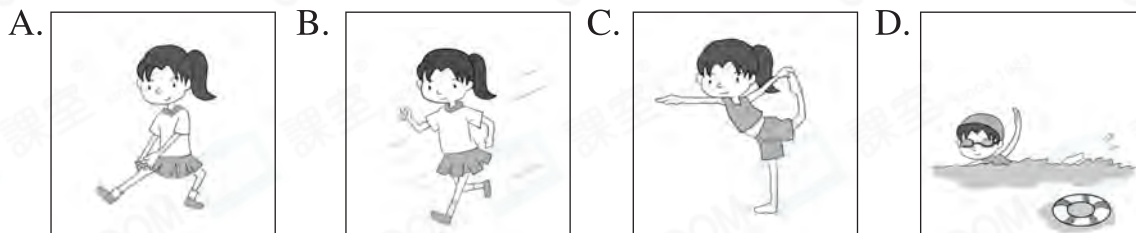

Having a healthy lifestyle is easy as long as you are willing to try. Let's start from today. In Part II of this article, I will move from physical health to mental health and suggest ways for you to relax and keep your smiles.

- A. we should eat healthy food
- B. we should always use plates while eating
- C. plates can keep us healthy
- D. healthy food can only be served on plates

26. How many tips for physical health are given by the writer?

- A. 1
- B. 2
- C. 3
- D. 4

27. What is the writer going to talk about in Part II of the article?

- A. Bad results of eating too much fast food
- B. Ways to keep our mind healthy
- C. Importance of doing physical exercises
- D. Ways to make others laugh

Joe has written an article about the annual school sports day for the school newsletter. Read it carefully and choose the best answers for Questions 29-35.

A Joyful Annual School Sports Day

By Joe Chow

Our school had its 30th annual school sports day on 10th April 20XX. Thirty students were chosen as class representatives to lead their classmates to the sports ground. After we sang the school song, the school principal cheered us up with a speech to kick off the annual sports day.

It rained a little at the beginning but it turned sunny soon. Everyone was excited to see the sun although we sweated a lot while taking part in different sports events. We all tried our best to win. Our sports day was filled with sweat and joy.

Apart from the sports events, there was also a competition for the cheerleading teams. The winner would be the team which cheered most enthusiastically for their classmates. Some teams danced and some cheered aloud with creative lines which won the applause of many guests, and of course, their classmates.

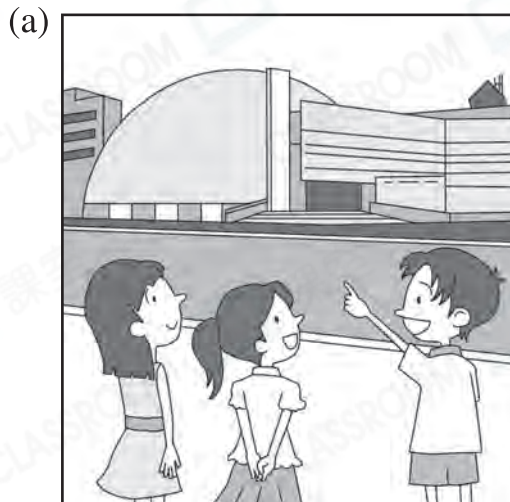

The last part of the sports day was the parent-child relay. Parents of all P.5 and P.6 students were invited to join this special event which was run for the first time. It was, therefore, a major highlight of the day. Everyone cheered loudly while watching their friends and family members running on the track.

All P.6 students were invited to the sports ground at the end of the day. This would be memorable to them because our principal presented a medal to each of them to show their hard work in the past six years. They are all welcome to join our sports day again even after their graduation.
