I was in Central Park at 4 pm yesterday with my little sister. Lucy was waiting for her turn to play on the swing. When it was Lucy's turn, a little boy suddenly pushed Lucy and got on the swing. He was so rude! We were shocked and did not know what to do. Finally, we waited in the queue for ten more minutes...

Mum asked me to buy a birthday cake for Dad on my way home from school today. There was one chocolate cake left in the bakery's window so I hurried to get in line. When I reached the cashier, an elderly woman cut in front of me and bought the cake. I know that I should respect the elderly but that doesn't mean she can jump the queue, right?
