Zootopia is a Must-see!

I watched Zootopia with my children yesterday and it totally surprised me. In the film, animals are intelligent like humans but they still keep their natural instincts. The Zootopia city looks like a harmonious place but in fact inequality often exists between large predatory animals and small prey. Judy is a rabbit who dreams to be a police officer because she wants to help the weak animals. However, her dream can hardly come true because of her body size. Many animals tease and laugh at her but she never gives up. The film is about how she overcomes the difficulties and solves cases with her fox friend Nick.

The film is not only fun to children but also inspiring to teenagers and adults. Inequality also exists in the real world. Many people often show bias towards others' races, family backgrounds or job positions. Sometimes it can be very hard for the disadvantaged to insist on their dreams. However, what Judy does in the film can encourage them not to give up. I think she sets a very good example for me to teach my kids.

Last but not least, the animated scenes in Zootopia are spectacular. Different parts of the city such as the deserts, rainforests and ice caps are beautifully presented. The animals also look lifelike. The plot is exciting and the ending is somehow unexpected. I had a great time watching this film in the cinema. I strongly recommend it to all of you!

I watched Zootopia with Dad today. It is such an 6. _____ film because it makes me think a lot about our city. As there is a lot of social bias in society, I hope we can work hard to make Hong Kong a 7. _____ city.
