We use adverbs of sequence to talk about the order of actions.

e.g. First, we visited the aquarium. Then, we watched the dolphin show.
Finally, we went to see the pandas.

Marcus is reading a letter from his pen pal.

Dear Marcus,

How do you do?

This summer, my family and I went on a trip to Hunan, China. We visited the Zhangjiajie Glass Bridge. It was the world's highest and longest glass bridge when it opened. It is 536 metres long and about 300 metres above the ground. Try imagining how amazing it looks from these numbers!

At first, I couldn't walk over the glass bridge. I was afraid that it might break suddenly, but Dad told me to be brave. 'Don't you want to have a look at the stunning view below the glass bridge?' he patted me on the shoulder and said. Finally, I stepped onto the bridge. I forgot about my fear when I saw the beautiful view below the glass bridge. The trip was wonderful! You must come here to see it one day!

What did you do this summer? I hope to hear from you soon!

Best,

Simon
