

Read the story and Victor's presentation script below.

Alvin got a train ticket to the future world from his friend Jane. He got on the train the next day.

1.

When Alvin and Jane arrived, she said nothing but sent him a text message, 'Hi Alvin, I noticed that people only use electronic devices to communicate here.' Then they went to a café to have lunch. Alvin found that no one ate their meals. Instead, everyone took out their phones to share photos of their food and drinks on social media.

2.

Suddenly, a chef ran out from the kitchen because it was on fire! Alvin left the café immediately. He yelled, 'Get out, everyone! It's dangerous!' Sadly, no one listened. All the customers stayed inside to broadcast the fire live on the Internet.

3.

Luckily, the firefighters arrived quickly and no one was hurt. Alvin went to check if Jane was fine, but she was too busy taking selfies with the burnt down café. Alvin was disappointed with his trip. He said goodbye to Jane and took the train back home alone.

4.

Good afternoon, everyone. I want to share my views on a short story called A Day in the Future. The story shows a future world where people are addicted to their mobile phones and do not use them wisely. Their habit nearly leads them to an awful ending. The story teaches me not to focus too much on electronic devices but to care about the real life more.
