My name is Theo. Welcome to my blog! My dad is a journalist and I learn a lot about the world from him.

My life was peaceful until one normal school day, Dad told me to be prepared for some tough changes in my life as there would be war in our country. For a while, I thought he was just telling a scary joke. But he was not joking. First, I heard people shouting one night. Then, there was a rain of fire and bullets. We were stuck at home. It was the longest night of my life. I shook like a leaf in bed when I heard the loud noises outside. Mum suggested I should do something I enjoy to ease my mind. So, I started to write stories.

In the following days, with no schoolmates or friends around, I tried to make videos and write about my life on the blog. I also collected bullet shells near my house to make model planes. I spent a lot of time at home, but I never felt bored as long as I could still share online.

Although I live in a country at war, I am thankful that at least there is peace sometimes. Also, there are many heartwarming stories around me. Through sharing them on my blog, I want to spread hope to others and make some friends from all around the world.
