Day 1, Hong Kong → Shanghai

Our trip finally starts! After a two-hour flight, my cousin Elaine and I (1) arrive in Shanghai at 3:00 pm. I (2) have never realised how fast the Maglev Train could be before I took one. The train (3) will leave every fifteen minutes and it takes only seven minutes to the city centre. We (4) had still read the map when it arrived at Longyang Road Station! If only we (5) have more time to take a photo on the train!

We started off sightseeing as soon as we (6) have checked in at the hotel. Tianzifang (7) was a popular tourist spot within an old living area. Many working locals (8) have already got home by the time we arrived there. They (9) prepare dinner or chatting with neighbours when we walked around. We (10) have found many small craft stores and art studios along the narrow alleys. I bought two Chinese-style dresses for my mum and aunt. I hope they (11) are going to like them!

Now we (12) sat at a little cosy café for a cup of coffee.

Elaine is making her first phone call to Aunt Mary while I (13) was writing. In the evening, we (14) go to the Bund. We (15) were not been there before but we (16) are admiring the beautiful night view near Huangpu River for long. Therefore, we (17) will take a first-class boat trip along the river soon, which (18) will last for ninety minutes! I (19) were so excited. We have a lot of plans in our minds and we (20) will explore Shanghai further in the next few days!
