

Challenge Station on Text Types

How is a poem usually composed? Write the correct letters in the boxes. Then choose the best answer for each question by blackening the circle.

A. Stanzas

B. Title

C(i). Metaphor

C(ii). Rhyme

C(iii). Personification

A City of Distinctive Fortune

1.

Here in one of the most heavily populated [?],
People hurriedly move around like running races,
Working from day to night,
Only to better their living with all their might.

2.

- 5 The buildings here are dense like a hedgehog's spines,
Only to provide residences for those along the coastline.
But every coin has two sides.
What matters when there is a brighter side?

3.

- All over the place are those palatable delicacies,
10 So unreal, so surreal, like your wild fantasies.
Egg tarts, fish balls, wonton noodles and dim sum,
You'll definitely raise your thumb.

4.

- Near every station must be one shopping mall,
Selling what you need at prices that you'll adore,
15 From local handicrafts to exotic merchandise.
No wonder millions flock to this shopping paradise.

5.

- Although Hong Kong is small and fast-paced,
It is a place that can never be replaced.
Oh, a city that never ages,
20 Always ready for some more pages!

6. The '?' in line 1 can best be replaced by _____.

A. places

B. place

7. According to the poem, shopping malls _____.

A. can be reached easily

B. are adored by many

8. Which of the following literary devices is NOT used in the poem?

A. simile

B. onomatopoeia