Unit 16 Threats to life in our ocean (p.127)

How can we protect marine life?

Write an article about ways to protect marine life in about 200 words.

The global marine species have been decreasing due to overfishing, climate change, pollution, and other factors. Many species are under serious threat, and we must take precautions to save marine life.

To protect marine life, we need to prioritize enacting rules and regulations that prevent ocean over-exploitation, such as land reclamation and offshore drilling. Additionally, we should support scientific research on biodiversity conservation and reducing marine pollution, and provide financial and technical support for marine life preservation.

Furthermore, we need to minimize and treat sewage discharge from factories before dumping it into the sea, as it contains harmful elements that can destroy the marine ecological environment.

It's crucial to adhere to the principle of not overfishing and not indiscriminately killing marine life for profit. The policy of closed fishing seasons in Hong Kong is a positive steps towards protecting fish populations and promoting sustainable fishing practices. Consumers can also consider choosing seafood that is farmed in a sustainable and responsible manner.

Overall, marine life is an essential part of the ecosystem, and protecting it means protecting our environment. The preservation of marine life and the ecological environment is necessary for human existence and development. Therefore, we must protect and conserve marine life.
